HELPING AT MEETINGS: If you can arrive early and help by setting up chairs, print stands, screen or tables please do so. Staying after the end of the meeting to put various equipment items and chairs away is another way to help. Help is needed with supper.

If you see a visitor or new member: Make their visit comfortable. Chat and welcome them. This is what the club is about – helping and encouraging people on their journey of photography.

REMEMBER: A club doesn't run by itself.

CONSIDERATION: Please remember that audible conversation during a judging or other presentation is both distracting to the audience and discourteous to the presenter. If you notice the President about to speak, ask your neighbours to please be quiet.

From the Editor

Hi all.

Well my break is almost over – shifting done and ready for the next installment. Thank you for being patient between issues. This is a bit of a make-shift issue in some areas but will get back to normal in the next issue.

Please do not hesitate to contact me with anything that you would like included in next month's issue.

Well we have seen a lot happening in the last couple of months, we saw the hunt and shoot, it seems a while back now but judging has now been done. See results on page 11.

We have seen Tim getting the mentoring program underway, which is wonderful and will help all new photographers. Don't forget though, that when you are mentoring, the trainer always learns lots as well.

A very exciting opportunity is being offered to take part in a real live exhibition. This is a once in a lifetime opportunity being organised by Sue Gordon and Priscilla Gibbs. Please consider taking part – more details on page 5.

If you remember, we have a photographer Noel Portelli from Malta who made contact with me a couple of months ago. He shoots some amazing images. He is editor of Click magazine and to learn a little bit about him please turn to page 9. I will try to keep you updated on some of his artistic tricks for his photographic style.

Happy reading!– Cheryl Zwart

How to straighten Images in lightroom

by Tony White

When we are taking our photos it is often difficult to keep the horizon level, especially when we are hand holding our camera. This means we need to straighten those images on the computer in programs such as Lightroom.

The process of straightening images in Lightroom is fairly simply, first you need to locate the image you wish to straighten in the library module of Lightroom and once you have done so take it over to the Develop module. You can reach the develop module by either clicking on “Develop” from the module choice section along the top of Lightroom or using the shortcut key D.

Now the tool that allows us to straighten images is the Crop tool, you will find this as the first tab of the tool bar under the Histogram. As seen below, you will also note the R in brackets, which indicates that the Crop tool can be accessed with the shortcut key of R.

On the Crop panel you will find the Straighten Tool next to the label Angle, click this tool and you will find your cursor change to have the Straighten icon attached. To use this tool you simply find the horizon on one side of the image and then click and drag (holding the mouse button down) to the other side of the image so that the line runs along the horizon.

Once you have the line running along the horizon, release the mouse button and the image will rotate and crop in to match what you have indicated as the horizon.

You can now click close or hit the enter key on your keyboard to finish. You can also straighten images vertically, such as buildings or posts by aligning the line to a vertical edge.

A bonus tip – You can access the Straighten Tool in the Crop Tool at any time simply by holding down the control key on your keyboard.

Make sure you check out our Lightroom Workshops to learn more about Lightroom and how to use it to process your images

MGPS Exhibition

Mt Gravatt Showgrounds | 17-18 Oct

"Art through the Lens"

Presenting images for an exhibition can be vastly different to entering competitions. Sooooo... We're hosting an exhibition!

Images will be for sale, so you will need to consider not just what you would hang on your wall, but what may be appealing to the general public. It is also an opportunity to show your artistic side. Exhibitions give you the experience of showing your work in a different circle, to an audience with no idea what rule of thirds, depth of field, definitions and so forth mean. They just know what takes their eye.

Consider in your image:

selection colours that are on trend

- shapes that are interesting
- interesting compositions
- textures

All images will be framed to a finished size of 16 x 20 inches. Matts will be off white and the frames black. Images can be any size up to 12 x 16 inches, as the matts will be cut to suit the image. The cost of framing will be a very reasonable $50. Images must be submitted no later than 16th Sept to allow time for framing.

Setting a sale price for your image will be up to the individual, however, consider the cost of the framing and printing when deciding what you will charge. Don't sell yourself short.

Assistance will be available for image selection and editing, as well as advice on printing.

Questions can be directed to John Doody, Priscilla Gibbs, Andrea Ryan, Ann Ingham or Sue Gordon.

Volunteers will be required to assist with such tasks as setting up and packing down, manning the exhibition, preparation of drinks and nibbles for the 'Meet the artist' event on the Saturday night.

4 Essential Ingredients for Great Landscape Photographs

A Post By: Anne McKinnell

COMMENTS

When you are out in the field and you're not sure if your the image you are making is any good, go through this quick mental checklist to see if your image contains these four essential ingredients.

1. GOOD LIGHT

Light is by far the most important element of a landscape photograph. A photograph of a stunning location taken in harsh mid-day light will fall flat. A photograph of a boring location taken at that perfect moment when the light is magical will turn into a unique and memorable photograph.

I don't actually believe that there is any kind of light that is inherently bad. You just have to know what to do with the light conditions that you are given.

The golden hour light of sunrise and sunset are usually a favourite time for photographers. My favourite time is the blue hour: twilight. It's hard to go wrong with these two types of light.

When you have a day with bright harsh sunlight, take advantage of the opportunity to look for interesting shadows.

Driftwood Beach on Jekyll Island, Georgia, USA.

The white sky of an overcast day is an excellent time to photograph close-ups.

And what about those stormy days? Those can be the best of all with the dramatic clouds that accompany a storm.

2. MAIN SUBJECT

The next thing is to make sure you have a main subject. That may sound pretty obvious but keep it in mind. You may find yourself, as I sometimes do, making an image of some general landscape without a clear subject. It's just some land with some trees and maybe some water. You need to decide what the subject is and that will help you make an image that is more compelling.

When I get to a location I like to think of what it is about that place that grabbed my attention and I make that the main subject. That's not to say you cannot then turn your attention to another main subject later, but if you have too many subjects in your scene, none of them will be the main subject and your image will be too general to be interesting.

While we're thinking about the main subject, what is it about that subject that you like? Having descriptive words in your head when you are making an image will help you focus and bring that description into the image. What is it about the lake you like? Is it the reflection? The shape? The peacefulness? How it is so clear you can see the bottom? Not only will this help you convey meaning in your image, but it will help you write about it later.

3. CLEAN BACKGROUND

Just as important as the main subject is what is behind it.

Clutter and distracting elements can ruin an otherwise good image. This is where perspective becomes important. You must find an angle to photograph your subject so there are no distracting elements in the background. That can mean getting up high and shooting down on your subject so the background is filled with only one texture, or getting low and shooting upwards so the background is filled with only sky.

Try to isolate your subject and simplify the image as much as possible.

4. INTERESTING COMPOSITION

I like to think of photography as the opposite of painting. Painters start with a blank canvas and start adding things to it, whereas photographers are presented with a scene full of details and must start eliminating things from it until it contains only the most important elements of the scene. Then, those elements must be arranged to create an interesting graphic design.

Remember the building blocks of composition that you can rely on to create interesting graphic designs:

- lines
- shapes
- curves
- colours
- textures
- patterns
- frames

The “trick,” if there is one, is to make all four of these things come together. It will take patience, perseverance, and a little luck.

Shortly you will see a calendar for sale at the club and also at the Mt Gravatt Show and the MGPS Exhibition.

The monochrome group has produced a calendar for next year. You will find some amazing images reproduced within this calendar from the attendees of the MGPS monochrome group and we would ask you to consider purchasing calendars for gifts for Christmas, which will be with us shortly.

The calendars will sell for $15 and the funds raised from the sale of these calendars will be used to host some specialised visiting speakers who can add to our knowledge base at the club, particularly from a Monochrome perspective. ALL club members would be encouraged to attend these meetings which would be held on a fifth Wednesday at St Bartholemew's Uniting Church Mount Gravatt.

Everybody, Somebody, Anybody, and Nobody

This is a little story about four people named Everybody, Somebody, Anybody, and Nobody.

There was an important job to be done and Everybody was sure that Somebody would do it.

Anybody could have done it, but Nobody did it.

Somebody got angry about that because it was Everybody's job.

Everybody thought that Anybody could do it, but Nobody realized that Everybody wouldn't do it.

It ended up that Everybody blamed Somebody when Nobody did what Anybody could have done.
